Pure Wood Alcohol Found on Premises -Police Blame Saloon for All Deaths Man Denies All Knowledge of Potson Fake Whiskey Very Commonly Sold.

United States Special Internal Revenue officer ('. O. Fellers, accompanied by half a dezen Government agents and two detectives from the West Forty-seventh street station, went to the saloon of Rudolph Fritsche, at 723 Tenth avenue, late yesterday afternoon and seized eight barrels of whishey which were stored in the rear of place. The barrels were sent to the Appraisers' Stores. Before sending them Fellers took a quart from each barrel as a sample to be sent to Washington for

A great crowd gathered around the place during the visit of the Government officers, and fearing that additional damage might be done to the saloon, Capt. Hussey ordered a squad of reserves to the scene. Then the crowd scattered.

The agitation resulting from the numer ous sudden deaths in the district has led to greater reforms than even the most optimistic Prohibitionist ever dreamed of. Everybody in the district seems to have "climbed upon the water wagon." The priests in nearby churches have been kept busy recording pledges and the saloons are doing little or no business. Everybody who suffers from an ache immediately ascribes it to bad whiskey.

At 8 o'clock last night, when Capt. Hussey the West Forty-seventh street station was giving orders to his men detailed to watch gambling houses, a young man rushed into the station and cried:

They're after me! They're going to It took four cops to hold him down and find out that he was George Weiss of 418 West Fifty-second street. Weiss said he had been drinking Tenth avenue whiskey and that his stomach felt as if on fire. He was sent to Bellevue Hospital. A few minutes later a policeman dragged into the station a man who had been shrieking and causing a disturbance at the corner of Tenth avenue and Forty-seventh street. He said he was Joseph Fleming, a brick-

"Well, what's the matter with you?" asked the sergeant. "Just Tenth avenue booze," answered

Heming. He also was sent to Bellevue.

The police of the West Forty-seventh street station and Coroner Scholer expect to receive to-day a complete analysis of arious samples of whiskey taken from the doon of Rudolph Fritsche at 723 Tenth venue and a number of other saloons in he "Striker's Farm" district, where the deaths from bad whiskey have occurred. They also expect to get a report of the analysis of the contents of the stomachs of several of the supposed victims.

Coroner Scholer said yesterday that with this evidence it might be possible to bring a serious charge against Fritsche or any other saloonkeepers whose whiskey may show the presence of a poison such as wood alcohol. Fritsche is now held as a "suspicious person." His examination on that charge comes up next Tuesday.

Police Captain Hussey said vesterday that in his opinion the whole trouble was confined to Fritsche's place. Samples of the whiskey sold in several other places where the supposed victims were accustomed to drink have been sent to the Board of Health, but no wood alcohol has so far been found in any of them. Against Fritsche's place the evidence seems to be overwhelming, the police say, although the person responsible has not yet been determined. Capt. Hussey received yesterday a report from the Board of Health showing an analysis of the contents of a two gallon can found in Fritsche's cellar near one of whiskey barrels. The report was that this can contained pure wood cohol. Capt. Hussey said that he had talled to find any other purpose for which this could have been used in the saloon than for mixing it in the whiskey. The can had evidently been purchased recently. In the top of it, in addition to the regular vent hole, a very small hole had been cut from which bottles might be filled.

Fritsche continues to deny all knowledge of how this can came to be in his place and also how his whiskey came to be "doctored" with any such stuff. Michael McAuliffe, Fritsche's last bartender, is dead. supposed victim of the poisoned whiskey. The only other person the police have heard about who might give them the evidence they want of what went on behind the bar is a bartender whom Fritsche employed before he hired McAuliffe. This man the

The Internal Revenue inspectors laugh at the importance attached by some to a book giving recipes for various kinds of whiskeys which was found by Coroner whiskeys which was found by Coroner Scholer in one of the places in the district. The recipes have long been recognized as ways of making what are known as "colored" spirits. Any rectifier holding a license from the Government is allowed to make such whiskey from pure spirits, and it is this whiskey which is offered for sale for five cents a glass. It is unmistakably bad whiskey, but it is not poisonous. A lot of rectifiers distribute these books to their customers.

"As a warning against purchasing liquor thus made," said one of the officers, "you are apt to find such a book anywhere, and you're apt to catch saloon keepers using these recipes themselves anywhere. When we catch them, we fine them $150. We find as many in the Tenderloin and in the good districts as we do on Tenth avenue. If we could show our records, a thing we're not allowed to do, a good many might have their confidence in liquor dealers badly shaken. A man is cheated when he gets that stuff, but he isn't hurt much by it." In the case of Frank Clarke, a book-keeper, who died suddenly yesterday morning at 248 West Fifty-first street morning at 248 West Fifty-first street, and was reported first as a "whiskey death," it was found that he died of heart disease. He said he had had a scrap with a friend and was knocked down. He had been drinking the night before and a bottle he and another man had bought at a saloon in the district was sent by the police to the Board of Health just for precaution. LONG HUNT ON MURDER CHARGE

NEW YORK LAD ARRESTED FOR CRIME IN SHERMAN, CONN.

Traced Through Towns in Illinois and Kentucky, Where He Was a Prisoner for Burglary-Killed Man Who Tried to Stop Robbery-A Boy's Sad Record.

"Robert Gardner," a prisoner in the ounty jail at Paducah, Ky., was identified by a Pinkerton detective yesterday as Paul Herbert Schmidt, wanted in Sherman, Conn., for the murder, on Aug. 22 last, of William Taylor, a farm hand, by whom he was detected robbing the country place of their employer, William H. N. Crittendon, a wholesale druggist of 75 East Tenth street, this city. The Connecticut authorities have been notified to forward the papers for his extradition. One day, when the family were all out fishing, a friend called at the house and found the safe in which Mrs. Crittendon kept her jewels broken open and rifled. In following a trail of blood that led from the house neighbors found Taylor's body in a field. He had been shot in the back and his head battered in.

Schm.dt drove to Paterson, N. J., in a rig stolen from the farm. Thence he made his way to St. Louis. For five weeks, officers have chased him from one town to another in Kentucky and Illinois. They lost track of him in Paducah until Chief of Police Collins suggested that he might be a young man arrested on Wednesday night for burglary. The detectives immediately questioned the prisoner (Gardner, as he called himself), and after a stiff examination wrung tioned the prisoner (Gardner, as he called himself), and after a stiff examination wrung from him, they say, a full confession.

Schmidt is 19 years old. He is the son of Fe-tram Schmidt, a cabinet maker of this city. As a child he was wayward and when thirteen years old he was committed, at the instance of his parents, to the Juvenile Asylum. Three years later he was indentured to a farmer named Brake in Buckhannon, W. Va. He was there but a few weeks when Brake and his family left the house one night to attend a funeral in a neighboring village. Schmidt selzed the opportunity to rifle the children's banks, empty his benefactor's wallet and drive off with a team of horses. He was arrested but not prosecuted, and drifted about among the mining settlements of West Virginia and Pennsylvania, where he was arrested several times for larceny, but never convicted. He had been in Mr. Crittendon's employ as a farm hand for about a month. Schmidt's father lives with his wife and two other children on the first floor at 521 East Eighty-fifth street. The old man was greatly affected when told last night that his boy was alrested for murder.

"The boy was always bad," said the cabinet maker, and we could never do anything with him, even when a small boy. We haven't seen him since July last year. His mother has several letters which were sent from West Virginia, where the boy said he was working on a farm."

Mrs. Rosenkranz says that she waited in front of the house while her daughter went upstairs to got her father. The girl came downstairs without him and Mrs. Rosenkranz sent her back. She waited over two hours, but her daughter didn't return. Then she went home, thinking her husband kept the girl.

About a month later, when she and her husband became reconciled, the first thing he did was to ask for Annie. She told him that she thought the girl was with him. He said he didn't know anything about the girl; that he wasn't at Gold's house on July 4. Then Mrs. Rosenkranz started a search.

Assistant District Attorney Corrigan sent for Mr. and Mrs. Gold and two persons who were in their house on the night that the girl disappeared. They all said that the only thing they saw of the girl was that she poked her head in at the door and then ran away. According to Gold's seven-year-old son, he saw the girl asleep on a chair and a strange man came in and took her away. The boy said that he thought the man was his grandfather. Mr. Corrigan took no stock in the boy's story.

Firemen Rescue Young Woman From West 54th St. Dwelling by Sheer Strength -Man Who Calls Himself Smith Made Needless Jump-Not a Prominent Man

A woman was burned to death and a man was severely injured in a fire early yesterday morning which almost completely gutted the four story stone residence at 164 West Fifty-fourth street. The woman was Mrs. Nellie Ferguson, 38 years old, who is said to have a husband living in Baltimore. The man's name is kept secret, but it is said that he is a college graduate and a member of one of the college clubs in this city. He jumped from a third story rear window, broke both his kneecaps and will probably be crippled for life. When he was picked up he said that he was "John Smith," and gave an address in West Seventy-third street, where he does not

Mrs. Ferguson occupied a room in the rear of the parlor floor, and with her in the house lived her negro maid, Letty Herbert, and two young women who said they were Mary Grant and Corrine Rogers. The Rogers girl slept in the rear room on the second floor and the Grant girl on the floor above. "Smith," who came to the house on Wednesday night, also slept on the second floor.

At about 3 o'clock the negro maid was awakened by cries from Mrs. Ferguson and ran downstairs to find the latter's room all ablaze. She was unable to run to her mistress' aid on account of the fire, so she ran back upstairs and awakened the others. The fire spread through the house very rapidly and a citizen turned in an alarm. When the firemen arrived they found the building all ablaze and saw a woman, clad only in her nightgown, hanging out of a third story window. This was Mary Grant, and, terrified by the flames back of her, she was threatening to jump.

Engine 23, which is housed in West Fiftyeighth street, was the first to arrive, and Capt. O'Neill, its commander, ordered Firemen Rau and Harney to get the woman down. They ran into the house next door at 166 and up to the third story, where Harney swung out onto a narrow coping. Rau straddled the window casing, grabbed the other fireman by the hand and held him close to the wall while he reached for the terrified girl.

He got his arm around her waist and, steadied by Rau, swung her out and around him until his fellow fireman was able to reach her. Then she was pulled in through reach her. Then she was pulled in through the window uninjured. It was a great strain for Harney and only his unusual strength and that of his companion made the rescue possible. Capt. O'Neill made a report of the rescue to fire headquarters yesterday and hopes that the feat of his men may be recognized by the department. Meanwhile the Rogers woman was escaping from the building with the utmost ease. In the rear of the house is a bay window extending almost the entire width of the dwelling. Next door there is a similar extending almost the entire width of the dwelling. Next door there is a similar projection and the windows of the two houses are not more than a yard apart. The woman stepped from her window to that of the house next door and was taken care of by her neighbors, as was also the Capart woman.

Butcher Told Actress She Could Not Cook, So She Had Him Arrested.

Bertha Hoyt of 24 East Thirteenth street, who said she was an actress and did a turn in comment, except among the parishioners | Tony Pastor's, complained to Magistrate Ommen, in the Yorkville police court, yesterday, that Emil Heller had called her a 'bat" and other hard names. Heller keeps butcher's shop at Third avenue and Eleventh street, and Miss Hoyt went there Wednesday, with her friend Agnes Maitland, another actress, and asked for a porterhouse steak. By way of encouragement, she remarked that the last one she bought was tough. "Tough nothing. You don't know how o cook," declared the butcher, who wanted ner to take a sirloin steak he had cut. She refused. He slammed the meat down on the block, she said, and came from behind the counter. She went on: "He had a big knife in his hand and I thought he was going to cut my head off. He called me a 'bat' and other hard names I'm ashamed to mention. He chased me out of the shop."

Miss Maitland said she heard the butcher call her friend names. "What did the complainant say at the time?" inquired Charles Hoffman, the butcher's counsel. "She said nothing. She was too dum-founded to speak."

"What! A woman not able to talk back?"
"Perhaps it was stage fright," remarked

"Or steak fright," added the lawyer.
Gertrude Miller had a story to tell about dertrude Miller had a story to ten about the butcher calling her names and chasing her across the street with a chicken. Heller said he had not called either women names, and had been in the butcher business for nineteen years and never before had trouble with his customers. Magistrate Ommen held him in $300 bail for his good behavior in which Pastor Mosier took a hand.

The boys heard the cries of the pursuing party and dropped the door. The boys in the cave heard the racket and they poured out of their retreat and made for the fence and safety. Every one got away but one boy. Frank Lynch was caught, and, as it turned out later, he was a new recruit to the Capt. Kidd band.

Pastor Mosier turned him over to the police of the Ralph avenue station, and Frank spent many uncomfortable hours until he was arraigned before Magistrate Furlong in the Gates avenue police court vesterday morning. ### CUTICURA REMEDIES.

A Remarkable Testimonial from a Most Intelligent and Trustworthy Lady.

"A tumor came on my neck and in a day or two it was as large as half an orange. I was very much alarmed for fear it was malignant. My friends tried to persuade me to consult my physician: but dreading that he would insist on using the knife. I would not consent to go. Instead, I got Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Ointment. I took the former according to directions, and spread a thick layer of the Ointment on the swelling. On renewing it I would bathe my neck in very warm water and Cuticura Soap. In a few days the Cuticura Ointment had drawn the swelling to a head, when it broke. Every morning it was opened with a large sterilized needle, squeezed and bathed, and fresh Ointment put on. Pus and blood, and a yellow, cheesy, tumorous matter came out. In about three or four weeks' time this treatment completely eliminated the tumor. The soreness that had ex-tended down into my chest was all gone, and my, neck now seems to be gone, and my neck now seems to be perfectly well.

"About five or six years ago my sister had a similar experience, used the Cuticura Remedies with magical effect. MATERIALS: - Fresh fish has little odor, bright eyes, red gills, firm flesh. When cooked the flesh readily separates from the bones.

& Perrins' Sauce Lea

Seasoning: - White fish have dry flesh, dark fleshed fish are rich in oil, but it is the sauce that makes the fish. Add to all fish sauces several spoonfuls of Lea @ Perrine' Sauce and the desired effect is instantly obtained. JOHN DUNCAN'S SONS, Agents, NEW YORK
